CHIROPRACTORS IN CAMPAIGN FOR ACT

Many Drugless Practitioners Gather at Uhbita Park for Picnic and Talks

Working in the interest of the chiropractic amendment, that is to be voted on by the people of California in the next election, 20 automobiles containing 82 persons, chiropractors, their wives and friends, motored here from Los Angeles yesterday.

The caravan of automobiles stopped at Urbita Springs Park yesterday afternoon and several of their number spoke on the work done by the profession and asked the support of the voters in the election.

Dr. Charles Cale Los Angeles chiropractor, briefly explained the desires of the chiropractors in putting the bill before the people.

Dr. T. H. Butler, local chiropractor, said in his short address to the people at the park that the proposed examination board to be composed of chiropractors would not cost the taxpayers one cent, as their salaries would be met by the fee charged the chiropractor taking the examination. He said that the amendment would be a protection to the people as it would allow only the best of the profession to practice in the state.

The trip yesterday was made under the auspices of the California State Chiropractic Society. They have made similar trips to other cities and are making a vigorous campaign for the passing of the amendment.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE CITY OF MODESTO

AUSTRALIA—AMERICA'S TRUSTY FRIEND

In Australia the United States has a trusty and admiring friend. The friendship is one not based on how much money, land or clothing can be gotten out of America as a gift to a hungry, starving multitude — it is the friendship of a strong, sturdy, pioneer race which appreciates character quality in another and wants to put a hand with a clip that betokens strength and regrets to find the same. It is a friendship of kindred qualities and ideals.

In France during the war wherever Australian and American met it was a hearty meeting of friends at first sight. The boys of the Young Australia League who toured America on several occasions sing before the war have never forgotten America and the

YOUR HOME TOWN AND ITS NEWSPAPERS

When people wish to interest distant friends in their home town they send away copies of the local newspapers. When the merchants are full of courage and advertise liberally an impression is created among the many people outside the town who see the paper that the town is exceedingly bright and wideawake as business men. If, at times, sales merchants let up a little on the advertising the town does not look so good to outsiders. Your paper then, is the representative — the spokesman—for your community. As your publication appears city those outside your immediate vicinity, so must your town appear

CHIROPRACTORS

Facts Relative to Their Examination and Licenses

By C. H. Pinkham
Secretary State Board of Medical Examiners

The statement made by Dr. [illegible], president of the Los Angeles Chiropractic College, "that no license has been issued to a chiropractor in the state" since 1915, as published in the Modesto Herald of Dec. 19, 1920, is one of those deliberately innocent or unintentional digressions from a strict statement of fact which has characterized the propaganda of the chiropractic proponents whose public utterances and published statements last assemble before the searching truth substantiated by recorded fact.

The records of the Board of Medical Examiners show that two Chiropractors have been admitted to examination for a Drugless Practitioner Certificate during the year 1920, and three of the four were successful in obtaining—not a chiropractic certificate, which would permit the holder to practice but ONE, of the 27 drugless varieties as long as he does not use drugs nor perform surgical operations.

Experience has convinced us that the average chiropractor lacks in the educational requirements of the Medical Act, which has been on the statute books for over seven years, without evidence that a single chiropractic school has agreed to offer an course of instruction a course which fulfills the educational requirements required. Is the State expected to grant a handicap on the aspiring chiropractic practitioner, when he or she must seek to obtain the coveted diploma, he is required to conscientiously devote at least six hours daily in his class room studies for two terms of 32 weeks each, completed in not less than 27 months? Please to figure this pounds that chiropractic adjustments will reorganize the spine in case that virulently infectious bacteria which often through neglect or proper preliminary measures at birth, so often results in permanent blindness?

If chiropractic is the panacea claimed, why does the chiropractor resort to electricity and other aids to treatment?

The creation of a separate chiropractic law would be a disaster. Thereunder every individual found unqualified by the Board of Medical Examiners would obtain his certificate from the Chiropractic Board. Legislative history repeats itself, and but a short period would elapse before the licensees of the Chiropractic Board would be busily clamoring to legislate back for the right to practice medicine (meaning medical), one hook in the article of incorporation of the American Chiropractic College of Los Angeles, as a subject of instruction. As a further evidence of the ultimate goal of the chiropractor, we cite the catalog of the articles of incorporation of the California College of Drugless Physicians of Los Angeles, recently amended so that the college be known as the California College of Physicians and Surgeons, with power delegated by the State "to conduct a college . . . to confer [illegible] Drugless College course figured on the basis of six hours per day of a five day week will require that said college either add a little time to this daily schedule required of its students, or must for classes a portion of each Saturday to class room work.

Let us stand loyally for education and squarely for proper standards of qualifications before an applicant is admitted to examination. Deny the persistent policy reported as adopted by the chiropractic schools, which will permit a student to attend two hours shy or eight, whatever space time can be taken from his daily routine. Devote the chiropractic school from the shadow of commercialism, as evidenced by a report of investment of one of the schools of Los Angeles, stating that fifteen or the lessons would had made themself in the practice of chiropractic. Let the chiropractic schools provide a full basic of complete instruction in each the subjects specified in the Medical Act, and the way is open for a Drugless certificate under the present law.

How empty is the statement that the medical men is not competent to examine the chiropractor, who in the next breath proclaims that he has studied ALL the subjects of the drugless curriculum and is therefore thoroughly competent to practice. Is the proper agency examination by the Medical Board based on the hope that an examination will be limited to chiropractic technique only? Yet this same chiropractic expects to enter your home to attend your wife during that critical time when she labors to bring to your household the babe whose first cry is to heal[illegible] assured and what about the accident? Are we to [illegible] an intelligent study of the situation in time. But notwithstanding this fact, we members will be compelled to take some definite action looking to give us some a chance to catch up with expenditures.
